DONALD Mc DONALD,

A SCOTCH SONG.

WRITTEN BY JAMES HOG.

MY name is Donald Mc Donald,
I live in the Highland sae grand, I've follow'd our banner, an' will do, Wherever my maker has land;
When ranked amang the blue bannets, Nae danger can fear me a' va,
I ken that my brethren aroun' me,
Are either to conquer or fa'.
Brogues an' brochen an' a', Brochen an' brogues an' a',
An' is na she very weel off, Wha has brogues an' brochen an' a'.

Last year we were wonderfu' canty, Our friends an' our country to see,
But since the proud Consul's grown vantie, We'll meet him by land or by sea.
Whenever a clan is disloyal, Wherever our King has a foe,
He'll quickly see Donald Mc Donald,
Wi' his Highlandmen a' in a row.
Guns an' pistols an' a', Pistols an' guns an' a',
He'll quickly see Donald Mc Donald,
Wi' guns an' pistols an' a'.

What tho' we befriend it young Charly,
To tell it I diana think shame, Poor lad he came to us but barely,
And reckon'd our mountains his hame;
'Tis true that our reason forbade us, But tenderness carried the day.
Had Geordy come friendless amang us, Wi' him wi' had a' gane away.
Sword an' buckler an' a', Buckler an' sword an' a',
For Geordy we'll encounter the devil, Wi' sword, an' buckler an' a'.

An' O I wad eagerly press him, The keys o' the east to retain;
For sude he gie up the possession, We'll soon hae to force them again.
Than yield up ae inch wi' dishonor, Tho' it were my finishing blow.
He ay may depend on Mc Donald,
Wi' his Highlandmen a' in a row.
Knees an' elba an' a', Elba an' knees an' a',
Depend upon Donald Mc Donald,
His knees an' elba an' a'.

If Bonaparte land at Fort William, Auld Europe nae langer sal grane, I laugh when I think how we'll gall him, Wi' bullet, an' wi' steel, an' wi' stane.
Wi' rocks of the Nevis an' Gairry, We'll rattle him aff frae our shore;
Or lull him asleep in a cairney,
An' sing him Lochaber no more.
Stanes an' bullets an' a', Bullets an' stanes an' a', We'll finish the Corsican callan, Wi' stanes an' bullets an' a'.

The Gordon is good in a hurry,
An' Campbell is steel to the bone, An' Grant, an' Mc Kenzie, an' Murray, An' Cameron will huckle to none.
The Stuart is sturdy and wannel, An' sae is McLeod an' McKay,
An' I, their gude brother Mc Donald,
Sal ne'er be the last in the fray.
Brogues an' brochen an' a', Brochen an' brogues an' a',
An' up wi' the bonny blue bannet,
The kilt, an' the feather an' a'.

FROM THE PORT FOLIO.

THE LAY PREACHER.

"Here am I, for thou didst call me."

With a voice, O public, so finely modulated, so gracefully soothing to the ear of an ambitious author, that he hearkens to the summons, and is actually indicting a sermon, apologetical for absence from his lay-stall, and for his negligence of the flock.

But who is there among the sons of men, of such self-denying humour, that will not sometimes, flee from confinement to breathe a little fresh air, and ramble, yea, run, a moment, from the drudgery of methodized life?

The clergyman, fatigued with Flavel, and panting under the annual load of heavy sermons, asks from the parish a respite; and as he cheerily urges his pacer, plodding and slow, like his owner, sings, instead of David's psalms, a hymn to the Goddess of leisure.

The lawyer choked with the dust of courts, and deafened by the gibberish of the laws, canters from the circuit; and placed at his desk, suffers not a plea in bar to obstruct the current of his yawning humour.

The doctor too and merchant, in gaping hours, scorn the recipe and the invoice, and idly dream of subjects more pleasant than subjects consumption or subjects commercial.

* The VACUUM of the Ancients.

If, therefore, the dignitaries of the church, the Don in the state, and the "great oneyers" of the mart thus frolic during the holidays of indolence, many circumstances may, at any stage of his course, command a Lay Preacher to rest from his labour. Like a bishop, Horseley or Porteus, he is not invested with holy lawn to inspire awe in the vulgar, nor, like those illustrious prelates, is he brilliant and learned to excite the admiration of the wise. When he reflects on the obscurity of his station, and the simplicity of his lessons, he perceives without wonder, the paucity of his disciples. Moreover, within that narrow circle, which may be justly denominated my listening parishoners, Who hath believed our report? Neither by smiles nor by frowns, neither by grave precepts nor merry allusion, has the Lay Preacher driven the rake from his mistress, or the reveller from his wine. Men persevere in tracing the path which Passion has chosen, or Habit has worn smooth, and the monitory sermon if read, is soon forgotten.

To those, who from the intimacy, or partiality of friendship, are anxious that my weekly advice should still be given, and to the public, who have condescended once or twice to ask for me, I will narrate the private motives, which persuade, or compel me occasionally to be silent.

In the first place, I honestly declare, with wonted frankness, that many evil spirits often have dominion over my mind, and that Indolence, Spleen and Ill-humour are too frequently suffered to lock up my quills, and overset my ink horn.

Like a venerable predecessor, I am sometimes the victim of "weariness and painfulness, and watchings," all which are unfriendly to preaching; nor do I believe the archbishop of Canterbury himself, could indite a Pastoral Letter, or make a Visitation Charge successfully, under such unfavourable circumstances.

He, who resolves to speculate, flies, in conformity to the suggestion of Horace, to the grove; and, in a lonely situation, converses with few, besides his books and himself. But if an author keep no other company, he will not be long qualified to give interest and novelty to his researches. Every line will savour of the lamp, and every page will be mouldy with the damp air of a monkish cell. Hence, to write what the world will cheerfully read, it is absolutely necessary for a Man of Letters to obey the advice of the poet Green, and make

"Trips through the Town, life to amuse,
"To purchase books, and hear the news,
"To see old friends, brush off the clown,
"And quicken taste."

Unless he occasionally wandered thro' a great city, and forsook his closet, for a saunter in "Vanity Fair," how could a Lay Preacher correctly describe, or justly censure fashionable follies and the blameful luxuries of a capital? To ridicule, with point and effect, the fantastic foppery of dress, one must actually look across the street, or through the coffee house, and mark the peacock beau "expanding his gayest plumage." To laugh judiciously, at gowns without a waist, or petticoats either transparent or scanty, a satiric writer must often gaze at the daughters of fashion, and go, one morning, with giggling girls, to that great band box of millinery, the shop of Miss Chrystal. How could a recluse author know his right shoe from his left, unless he had frequent conferences with Bedford, that modish disciple of St. Crispin, and how, without the lessons of a Tiffin or a Freeman, could he describe a Teoman crown, or the vast circumference of a Chabenebras?

Now, it scarcely from these premises need be inferred, that to gather materials for composition, is the work of one day, and to put them into form, is reserved to the next. It is unreasonable to expect that an essayist should be seen with a pen constantly in his hand. His effusions would become wretchedly trite, if he were not permitted to go abroad, searching for some new object, or some new face, to serve as fresh topics for speculation. While I am mingling in the crowd of high-street, lounging in booksellers' shops, listening to the song of glee, laughing with the jocund friend, arguing with politicians against democracy, or chatting with sensible women round a supper table, I am, in fact, composing Lay Preachers. The process, tho' invisible, still continues. I enter hints in my note book, though perhaps I may not expand them in the Port Folio; and keep, for future use, the fruit of my observations, as my tender and prudent mother used to store for me autumnal apples, to bless my infant palate in the distant spring.

But, tho' for a season, the Lay Preacher's desk has been shut, yet his books have been open, and his thoughts awake. He has seen some novel objects, and read some curious tomes in the course of his vacation, perhaps he is qualified to resume his labours, with some degree of spirit. The many a pensive eve, he meditates the substantial good of society; and peruses many a heavy book, with a view, by studious chemistry, to extract some essence, to relieve the spirits of his readers. At any rate, as this mode of writing is approved, by those, whom it is his ardent wish to please, he is determined to lay aside every weight of interest, which might bias him to more gainful occupations; to lay aside that sin of indolence, which doth so easily beset an invalid, and an author, and to run with patience the race that is set before him. He looks for recompence, not to the favor of the populace, but to the kindness of the few; and while he expresses honest thro'ts in simple diction, and "strives for the mastery" over Polly and Vice, he is confident of the courteous salutations of his brethren, especially such as be of Caesar's house.

From the BALANCE.

"WE ought to state facts, speak truth, and die martyrs," says Voltaire. The sentiment is a good one; but I fear there are very few who would willingly reduce the theory to practice. There springs up in the world, now and then, a genius who has resolution enough to state facts and speak truth, even at the hazard of his life; but these instances are extremely rare. Junius wrote with boldness, and even with insolence; but he was anonymous and unknown. Had he been otherwise, he might have written differently. Voltaire himself wrote with great freedom; and though the frequent difficulties into which his writings brought him, did not seem to depress his spirits, or curb the licentiousness of his pen, still it is well known, that Voltaire was not remarkable for resolution and fortitude. Impudent and insolent writers have appeared in every age and in every country: But impudence is not courage, nor insolence fortitude: Neither are impudent assertions always facts, nor insolent language truth.

The cause of truth has had many warm and able advocates, but has seldom found defenders who were willing to lay down their lives in its support. Thousands may delight in stating facts and speaking truth; but, to die martyrs—there's the rub. When it becomes dangerous to state facts—when the loss of life, of liberty, or of property is the consequence—then poor truth will be abandoned—the girl and irresolute will fly her standard; and with the few faithful friends who cling to her in adversity, she will become an outlaw and a vagrant.

"State facts, speak truth, and die martyrs." And is one the certain consequence of the other? Truly, I hope not. Miserable indeed, would be the situation of the world, were the forfeiture of life always to follow the promulgation of truth. The individual good to be derived from the one, would be an insufficient inducement to risk the other. These extreme cases, perhaps, may never happen. But it is uncertain to what lengths a war against truth may be carried. If the rulers of a people become so corrupt, that they are compelled to check the progress of truth, it must be expected that they will make use of the means most likely to effect their purpose. If fines and imprisonment are found insufficient, it must be expected that more severe punishments will be resorted to: And it may undoubtedly be contended, that death may be inflicted with as much right and justice as any other penalty. Indeed if the promulgation of truth and fact were declared a crime, who could set bounds to its criminality? Other crimes are punished according to their magnitude. If, then, truth be a crime, the "greater the truth," the greater its criminality.

Since, then, we know not what may happen. Since we know not how soon truth may be pronounced a crime. Since we know not but the time may come when that crime will be punished with death, the maxim of Voltaire ought to be impressed on the heart of every American. We ought to "begin with infants in their cradle, and teach them to 'state facts, speak truth, and die martyrs.'" This should be the standing motto of all our political books and newspapers. It should be written in letters of gold and fixed up in every school academy or college. We should be bound to adhere to it, by all the ties of honesty and patriotism. We should spare at the coward who would vow to maintain

Far better, far more to "die martyrs," sacred, the invaluable facts and speaking

CHARLESTON, July 27.

Arrived schr. Brothers, Hughes Barra-Schr. Atalanta, Micks, Wilmington.

Capt. Hughes left at Barracoa, the brig Sally, Spooner, for this port, to sail next day; and sloop Friendship, Thomas, in 2 or 3 days. July 21, in Crooked Island Passage, spoke a brig from Rhode-Island bound to Jamaica.

The brig Penelope, Sargeant, of New York, sailed from Barracoa for St. Jago de Cuba, was overhauled by a French privateer, who finding on board an old letter directed to a merchant in C. Francois, sent her back to Barracoa, but by the intercession of some French merchants, she had been again liberated.

The brig Tartar, capt. Doan, mounting ten guns, sailed from Aux Cayes on the 28th June, in company with brig Delaware, Deal, for Baltimore, brig Oxford, Dawson, for do. unarmed, and schr. Hector, Christie, for New York, mounting 5 guns. July 5, under Henneaga, were chased by two French privateers, mounting one 18 and 4 six pounders each, and each carrying 100 men; at half past 9 A. M. after a chase of two hours, they succeeded in bringing the Tartar to an action, which lasted for two hours and thirty minutes; when they carried her by boarding. The other two brigs escaped from the privateers, but on the night of the sixth were both run ashore on Fortune Island; the schr. Hector fell in, on the morning of the 7th in Crooked-Island-Passage, with the French privateer Chasseur, and after an engagement of half an hour was captured and sent into Barracoa; where the brig Tartar has also arrived.— Capt. Doan came passenger in the schr.

JAMES M. M'PREA, C. C.

ON DUELLING.

The following extract is from a letter written by Dr. Franklin to Dr. Percival, dated Passy, (near Paris,) July 17, 1804.

"It is astonishing the murderous practice of Duelling, which you so justly condemn, should continue so long in vogue.
Formerly when duels were used to determine law suits, from an opinion that Providence would, in every instance, favour truth and right with victory, they were more excusable. At present they decide nothing. A man says something, which another tells him is a lie. They fight, but whosoever is killed, the point in dispute remains unsettled. To this purpose we have a pleasant story here: A gentleman in a coffee-house desired another to sit further from him—why so? Because, sir, you smell offensively. This is an affront and you must fight me. I will fight you if you insist upon it, but I do not see how that will mend the matter—for if you kill me I shall smell too, and if I kill you, you will smell, if possible, worse than you do at present.

"How can such miserable sinners as we are entertain so much pride, as to conceive, that every offence against our imagied honor, merits death. These petty princes in their own opinions would call that sovereign a tyrant, who should put one of them to death for a little uncivil language though pointed at his sacred person. Yet every one makes himself a judge in his own cause; condemns the offender without a jury, and undertakes himself to be the executioner."

Captain Don, of the brig Mary, arrived in the river Mississippi, after a passage of 76 days from London, and 52 from Land's End—gives the following account of the ill treatment he received from a French privateer:

"On the 2d April I left the Downs, bound on a passage from London to New Orleans. Nothing material occurred during the passage, until the 21st of May, being then between Cape Ti-beron, St. Domingo, and Cape Muzze, Cuba.
In the morning I was brought too by a small schooner under French colours, which ordered me to hoist out my boat, and come on board with my papers; which I was obliged to do immediately. I no sooner got on board, than the Captain let a banditti of extraordinary bad looking fellows on board the brig; and while the Captain pretended to be looking at my papers, on board of his miserable bark, the others were busily engaged on board the brig, breaking open cheests, trunks, boxes, &c. and taking what suited them. There were two gentlemen and two ladies passengers on board. They went in the cabin, drove the ladies on deck, and frightened them in such a degree that one of them did not get over it in three weeks, took a quantity of guinness from one of the passengers, robbed the mate of almost all his fine clothes. In fact, all in the cabin suffered by them so considerably.

"By this time I had been about three hours on board the pirate; the first thing I knew of their plundering the brig, was seeing the boat return loaded with new cordage belonging to the brig, a quantity of powder I had for my own adventure, with a number of pieces of small rigging, and even the log and reel. When I spoke to the captain of the impropriety of doing so, he said, he wanted rope to rig his bark; likewise the gunpowder to shoot the English."

No Republic of the many which have existed has stood. All, all have fallen in the very same way, and by the treacherous hand of the same hypocritical assassin. Democracy breeds demagogues, demagogues make and spread lies; these excite passions and kindle the bonfires which light the Republican First Consuls to the throne, and the true patriots to martyrdom. In a word, licentiousness destroys republics, and he is the true republican, the friend of liberty who sets himself about to restrain licen-tiousness. But as this work would restrain demagogues, they loose no time to destroy or which is the same thing to render unpopular the man who would curb licentious-ness.

Accordingly the business of confusion begins by confounding names & he who agra-vates the known and fatal dangers of liberty is called a republican, and he who tries his utmost to lessen those dangers is called the enemy of liberty. He is preferred who gilds and sweetens poisons, the physician is slain for prescribing antidotes. This work of mischief seemingly so strange, nevertheless is ever successful. Already our liberty has lost its best props. The Constitution has no longer an independent Judiciary for a bulwark; the President, who alone dictates; and whose will is as little obstructed as that of Tiberus was by the cypher Senate of Rome, has an empire of his own bought indeed with public money, but as much a Province for an ambitious chief to gain strength in, as ancient Gaul was for Caesar.

With those facts before every one's eyes, facts that strike every patriot's heart with dismay, are not those federal men fatally vindicated by time and experience, who cried out to the people, your favorites flatter to betray—they court you to give them power, and they will grind you to powder when you have rashly conferred it, and is it not so?

ALLEGORY.

Virtue, a nymph of celestial origin, wandered along on the earth unnoticed. Truth and majesty shown on her brow, love beamed in her eye, and softness hung upon her lips, yet the sons of men viewed her without desire. They thought her beauty of too chaste and severe a cast, and avoided her company because they feared her reproof. She was grieved to be thus disregarded and strove by displaying her amiable qualities, to engage the love and admiration so justly her due. Those who accidentally approached her felt the power of her charms, while those at a distance abused and defamed her. Some pretended even to doubt her existence, and others declared her an imposter. She bore all this with patience because she remembered her celestial origin and destination. It was rumoured that she was the heiress of immense treasures, and notwithstanding men are greedy of large possessions, she even this procured her no lovers. She had a few friends. One of them at length began to regard her with complacency, and tho' he did not credit the story of her wealth, he resolved after some reluctance to espouse her. As soon as she was convinced of his sincerity, she consented, and he took her to his bosom; yet without being so much enamored as her beauty deserved.— But every day unveiled some new charm.

She gave him so many proofs of the disinterestedness of her regard, that his heart was penetrated with gratitude, and he rather adored than loved her. In process of time she made him the father of two lovely daughters, whom she called Consolation and Delight. These children were perfect cherubs, and followed his steps wherever he went. Consolation wiped the tears from his eyes and filled his soul with the placid serenity which beamed thro' her own countenance—while Delight with sparkling eyes and exulting heart described to him the treasures which her mother possessed in a distant country and which he might claim in his behalf. Virtue confirmed the words of her child.

She assured him a guide would soon arrive and conduct him to her father's court.
He could not doubt her truth, but waited with impatience the arrival of the messenger; the endearments of his wife and the caresses of his children were a perpetual solace to his heart. The messenger at length came, who was a monster of a frightful aspect, but he made him welcome because he was the only guide acquainted with the way, and because his wife assured him that when he reached home they should see no more of him.

THE CHEVALIER DE D'EON,

OR, Mademoiselle la Chevalier D'Eon du Beaumont, was born Oct. 4, 1728, at Tonnerre, in Burgundy. The family of this extraordinary woman, is mentioned as an ancient one, in the Genealogical Dictionary of De Bois de la Chesnaye. Her grand-father and father were successively deputy intendant of the generality of Paris & her mother was Francoise du Charenton daughter of M. du Charenton, who was commissaire ordonnateur de Guerre to the French armies in Spain and Italy. At a very early age for reasons not yet divulged, her parents obliged her to assume the dress of a boy. When six years of age she was sent to her aunt in Paris, where she began to receive an education suitable to her supposed sex. At the age of fourteen she was sent to the college Maxarin in that city as a day scholar; where she was no less distinguished for her proficiency in literature, than for the regularity of her conduct. When she had completed her education in that seminary, she became accomplished in the masculine science of fencing, riding the great horse &c. She was also about this time regularly admitted to the degree of doctor of civil and cannon law and was received advocate of the parliament of P. r. s. Her love of literature did not then forsake her, many miscellaneous pieces proceeded from her pen, as "The Funeral Eulogium of Marie d'Este, Duchess of Penthiere," and another on the Count d'Ons en Bray, president of the Academy of Sciences at Paris," &c. The late excellent prince of Conti, who knew the secret of her sex introduced her in 1755 to Louis XV. (to whom he communicated the secret) as a person very capable of conducting a business he had much at heart; a reconciliation between his court, and that of Russia. Mademoiselle D'Eon having succeeded in this very arduous undertaking, in which she was engaged as a woman, and without any public character, was again sent to that court in 1757, in conjunction with Chevalier Douglass, as a man, and in an open and avowed diplomatic situation. Their negotiations were so powerful, that they prevailed upon the Empress Elizabeth to join the armies of France and Austria with fourscore thousand troops, which she had originally destined for the king of Prussia. On her return to Paris, the same year, she was commissioned to communicate the plan of the Russian military campaigns to the court of Vienna; and while she was at that court the news arrived of the famous battle of Prague. The count de Broglie entrusted her with dispatches for the court of France, giving an account of the victory gained over the king of Prussia. Charged with these dispatches, and the treaty concluded between Russia and France, Mademoiselle D'Eon set out for Paris; and though her carriage was overturned and she broke one of the bones of her ankle, she reached Paris thirty six hours sooner than the courier dispatched from the court of Vienna to that of France. The dispatches were delivered into the hands of M. de Rouill, then secretary of state for foreign affairs, and immediately taken to Louis XV. who ordered a lodging to be prepared for her, and sent one of his surgeons to attend her.— From the effects of her being overturned in the carriage, she was confined to her bed for three months; and on her recovery was presented by her sovereign with a lieuten-ancy of dragoons (a situation she had long been anxious to obtain) & was sent a third time to Petersburg as secretary of embassy to the marquis de l'Hospital. She returned from that court in 1759; and, being desirous of distinguishing herself in her military profession, she was permitted to join her regiment in Germany, as Captain of dragoons, and as Aid-de-camp to the Count and Marshal de Broglie. At the engagement of Ultrap, our heroine was twice wounded. At that of Osterlich, at the head of fourscore dragoons and forty hussars, she charmed the battalion Prussien de Rhos, which she completely routed, and took the commanding officer prisoner. In September 1763, she was sent to London as Secretary of Embassy to the Duc de Nivernois, Ambassador from France to that court, to conclude the peace of 1763. Her conduct on this business was so agreeable to the King of England, that he desired (though contrary to the usual etiquette on these occasions) that she might carry to France the ratification of the treaty of peace, concluded between his court and that of Versailles. Her own sovereign also, as a mark of his approbation, honored her with the order of St. Louis. When M. de Nivernois quitted his embassy, Mademoiselle D'Eon was appointed Minister Plenipotentiary to the Court of London.

Her disputes with M. de Gnerchy, who succeeded M. de Nivernois, are related with great spirit, under the title of "Letters, Memoires, et Negotiations particu-lieres de Chevalier D'Eon." Whatever part the French Ministry might choose to take in these disputes, her Sovereign continued to honor her with his promotions and confidence, and she remained in epistolary correspondence with him till the time of his death. Louis XV. settled pensions on Mademoiselle D'Eon, at different times to a considerable amount, and they were continued to her by the late King of France with the express order for the resumption of her sex, and on condition that she wore the dress of a woman. He permitted her, at her own requisition, to retain the cross of St. Lewis. Since the peace of 1763, Mademoiselle D'Eon, has resided chiefly in and about London, where the brilliancy of her wit, the variety of her information, and other companionable qualities, have procured her many respectable friends. In the company of a select party, she very lately took an elegant frugal repast, at the Long Rooms, Hampstead. She has also publicly exhibited her fencing abilities, at the Rotunda, before the Prince of Wales.

For Jaundice and Bilious Complaints, WHEATON'S
GENUINE PATENT BITTERS,
Price only 58 cents,
Secured to him by Letters Patent from the President of the United States.

A MEDICINE extremely useful and efficacious for curing jaundice and bilious disorders, and removing that fading and distressed feeling at the stomach, difficulty of breathing, loss of appetite, and sleep, dull heaviness in the forehead of the day, weakness and trembling of the limbs, dizziness of the head, and yellowness of countenance, complaints so common to jaundice and bilious people.

Also cures obstructions of the bowels, and of urine, rheumatic complaints, pukings, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatic complaints, &c. which arise from a collection of four, bilious matter in the stomach, and at length restoring the constitution to strength and vigor.

They are also found very useful to carry off worms, and to cure ricketty children, and may be used with safety in all constitutions, ages and sexes.

The many cures that have been effected in New England, by the above medicine (as may be seen in the bills) prevent the necessity of further recommendation.

LIKEWISE,
Wheaton's Patent Itch Ointment,
Price only 50 cents.

The only medicine in the world which will certainly cure the ITCH, without having in it any thing either dangerous or disagreeable; it being composed mostly of ingredients never before discovered or used in that disorder.

One box cures a person, and there need be no washing after the use of it, as the skin is generally left cleaner and smoother.

REANIMATION.

WHEN the most important functions of life are suspended, and those who are invalids by imprudence, inheritance, accident or disease, are tottering upon the brink of the grave, it is not in despair that relief is to be sought.
There is a medicine which has restored thousands from infirmity and misery to health and happiness, which is

THE AROMATIC LOZENGES OF STEEL.

Since this excellent medicine was first discovered by Dr. Bardwell, several thousand females have experienced its salutary effects; many of whom had been reduced to the brink of the grave having used every remedy recommended as specific in those complaints, and had made every application to the faculty that could be obtained. The following recent case is selected from a numerous list.

From Mrs. Eleanor Wadsworth, Providence, (R. I.)

Sir,
We received yours and with much pleasure comply with your request, as my daughter has certainly recovered very great benefit from Dr. Bardwell's Aromatic Lo-zenges of Steel.

In the winter of 1862 my daughter, who is in her 17th year caught a very severe cold, which with the violent fever which accompanied it, confined her to her room upwards of four months; during this period we paid for Doctors bills and consultations 150 dollars. The fever left her in the most deplorable and debilitated state with hardly any use of her limbs, so that we were obliged to carry her from the bed to the chair. Being strongly persuaded by the Doctor we went to Ball-Town Springs and stayed the season, and thought she gained considerable strength by the use of the waters; but by the fatigue of the passage (having very rough weather) she became as weak and her cough much worse than before. During the last winter her whole nervous system has been so irritable, and her spirits so low and depressed, that death to her was desirable. In the latter end of January we saw an Advertisement recommending the Lozenges of Steel for similar complaints, we immediately purchased a packet of them, and before the whole of them were taken, they evidently produced a change in her system, which no medicine before had been able to effect. We sent for two more packets. It is now fourteen days since she began to mend; she has laid aside her crutches, has been twice on horse back, and if the weather should prove favorable we intend coming to Peckskill early in April to stop until we go to Ball-Town Springs; from there we will send you our address, where with pleasure we will satisfy any enquiries.

Price one Dollar per Packet.

Particular directions for their use are sealed up with each but as the great benefit to be derived from them can only be secured by having them genuine, the public are requested to observe that the name of "Thomas Stokes & Co. are affixed to each packet, without which mark of authenticity they are not genuine.

The Lozenges of Steel, are only to be had, in Alexandria, of Messrs.

R. & J. GRAY.

Dr. Hunter's genuine Antibilious Pills
For the prevention and cure of Yellow, Bilious and Putrid Fevers.

Every experienced physician knows what dangerous disorders arise from a redundancy of bile in the habit; however salutary a due secretion of this fluid may be, yet a diffusion of it in the circulation is known, from its putrescent qualities, to bring on sudden and fatal fevers. The unparalleled success of Dr. Hunter's Antibilious Pills, in curing, and particularly in preventing this dreadful disease, is universally known in the islands, and has induced the proprietor to appoint agents in all the mercantile towns in the United States, for the accommodation of the public.

The Antibilious Pills are therefore, in an especial manner, recommended as a preventative, deferring the notice of all persons going to the West Indies, or any of those places infected with these fevers. Dr. Hunter has every possible reason, that can result from long and extensive experience, for believing that a dose of these pills, taken once every fourteen days, during the prevalence of our fall fevers, will prove an infallible preventative, and that, if taken in the early stages of these fevers, their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases deemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, may be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.

In sickly times and places a dose should be taken once a fortnight, and if there is reason to apprehend personal danger, once a week.

Observe that the signatures of Messrs. Thos.
Stokes and Co. is affixed to each box, without which mark of authenticity they are not genuine.

The genuine Scotch Itch Ointment.

The only medicine that cures this disagreeable disease by one application, so many thousands having experienced its efficacy; it is unnecessary to add any more arguments in its favor, but to caution the public that the name Thos.
Stokes and Co. is affixed to each box, without this mark of authenticity, none are genuine.

Dr. Bardwell's genuine Eye Water.

A foreign remedy for all diseases of the eyes; speedily removes inflammation, dimness, itching, and films never fails to cure those maladies which frequently succeed the measles, small-pox, and fever; and is an unparalleled strengthener of a weak sight.

Dr. Hunter's genuine Antibilious Pills.

An agreeable and certain preventive of the predisposition to inflammatory and malignant fever, which prevails at particular seasons of the year. The rapid and increasing demand from every part of the United States, and the West-India islands, is the best evidence of their superior excellence.

CHAMBAUD'S Antasthmatic Lozenges.

A radical cure for coughs, colds, asthma and consumptions, difficulty of breathing, &c. &c.

Mr. CHAMBAUD, the sole proprietor of this medicine, has the satisfaction to announce that they have been the means of relieving many persons in a most precarious state of health. In common colds this medicine produces so salutary a perspiration that they generally are eradicated in a few hours. Coughing, being prolonged by that convul-sive symptom termed the tickling in the throat, it shortens its duration by promoting sleep and strengthening the constitution. Pulmonary complaints, affecting the breast and lungs; those affected with them experience an almost immediate relief. Asthma and confined consumptions have repeatedly been eradicated by them. Infants in the whooping-cough, and women during pregnancy, may take them without the least fear of danger, and with the greatest expectation of relief, nor can it be administered at an improper season.

Dr. BARDWELL'S

Anodyne Effluence, for all kinds of Head Aches.

THE renowned virtues of the Anodyne effluence, is now so generally known, that it is no presumption in the Proprietor, to say, that Head Aches, arising from whatever cause, or however violent, instantly submit to its penetrating powers. This invaluable Anodyne, has frequently succeeded after the best advice, and every other remedy had failed; by its salutary operation, it insensibly promotes circulation and perspiration, and thereby prevents the return of the most obstinate periodical head aches.

SPRING PHYSIC.

DR. HUNTER'S Anti-Bilious Pills are unquestion-ably proved by ample experience to be the most effectual remedy, at the same time the most innocent, pleasant, and convenient medicine for the cure of curvy, febrile eruptions, leprosy, and other disorders originating from a corrupt state of the blood. The remarkable cure of Mr. Elliston of Albany, who had been twelve years tormented with a most distressing febrile complaint, as also that of Thomas Johnson, a labouring man, in the service of Mr. Van Rensselaer, who was afflicted with a most horrid leprosy, must have convinced every one who has read the particulars of these cases, belid's which, a variety of proofs of their efficacy, authenticated by persons of character and respectability are open to the examination of every inquirer. These must naturally be supposed to have their due weight, and supercede the necessity of any further comment from the Proprietor. yet, he presumes to assert, that the real merits of this vegetable preparation will, on a fair trial, plead more forcible its own recommendation than any thing which can be said of it.

Where also may be had,

Atkinson's Worm destroying Lozenges.—These Lo-zenges not only destroy worms where they exist, but effectually prevent their return. These families who have followed Dr. Atkinson's advice, and fed them in the Spring and Fall among their children, as their common physic, have now the happiness to find those children, which appeared sickly and consumptive, in the bloom of health, being entirely delivered from those dreadful vermin.

Sparta, Mount Pleasant,
March 27, 1863.

We hereby certify, that our daughter, about 4 years of age, has been very unwell and in a bad state of health for these last two years. We always suspected that she had worms, and had given her several worm medicines, without any good effect, so that we despaired raising her ill of late. Hearing of some surprising cures being performed by Atkinson's worm destroying Lozenges, we purchased a packet of them, and administered them according to the directions. The first dose brought away only one worm, and with it a quantity of slimy, offensive matter; the second brought away four monstrous thick worms nearly half a yard in length; and the third of a large quantity of a mytil, offensive matter. The vomiting and purging, with which she was frequently troubled have ceased—her appetite has become regular, and has ever since enjoyed a perfect state of health, for which we are entirely indebted to this excellent medicine.

Reanimating Solar Tincture, or Pabulum of Life

Of the cure of Consumption and Asthma. Disorders in the Stomach and Bowels, Convulsions, Cholera and Di-sentery.

Cautious investigation, and attentive enquiry into the nature and laws of the animal economy, having long confirmed an opinion in the mind of the inventor, that all the maladies above mentioned, derive their origin from the same cause, indirect debility, or consequent weakness, the analogy of their source, by a natural inference suggested the idea of their removal by the same means; the result was the discovery of the Reanimating Solar Tincture, which after having been employed in thousands of instances, with the most unexampled and astonishing success, has obtained the warmest approbation of characters of the first respectability, both in and out of the profession; the Proprietor can confidently recommend as one of the most certain, efficacious, and pleasant remedies ever discovered by man or offered to the world.
Price, 1 dol. and 1 dollar and 50 cents per bottle. The large bottle contains nearly two of the small. Careful Directions for their use are sealed up with each bottle.

Dr. Stoughton's Cordial Bitters, faithfully prepared at the original warehouse, London.

This incomparable medicine has stood the test of universal approbation in Europe for near an hundred years, in the cure and prevention of,

Loss of appetite, bad digestion, windy cholera, wickets, hysterical vapours, faintness and trembling, ague and fever, depressed spirits, foul breath, worms in children, scurvy, obstructions or stoppages, bilious fevers, sick fits, &c. &c.

These Bitters being now generally used in taverns and public places, and universally acknowledged by all who have tried their effects, to be far superior to the compositions formerly imposed in imitation thereof; the Proprietor hath reduced the price to those who purchase largely above fifty per cent. Directions will be printed on the Bottles, and which will be also sealed, in order to detect counterfeits and upstart pretenders, who will all tell you, they make the genuine Stoughton's Bitters; and in order to impose their trash on the public, they sometimes copy a part of the true advertisement and directions.

Specific Drops for Deafness.

FOR many years have these drops been used with amazing success, in DEAFNESS & HARDNESS OF HEARING. Those who are unacquainted with the great relief afforded by this valuable medicine, are earnestly recommended to a trial. Few are the cases in which it has not been of great service, and very often perfected a complete cure.

Copious directions for the use of the Specific Drops for Deafness are sealed up with each bottle. Price one dollar.

Notice.

The Firm of LIBBY, CARNE & SLADE, commonly known by the name of CARNE and SLADE, is this day dissolved by mutual consent and in perfect good harmony: in future the business will be carried on by

LIBBY and CARNE,

at their old store in Fairfax Street, and by CHARLES SLADE,

on Prince Street, between Ricketts and Newbury corner and P. Warton's store. They take the opportunity of making their grateful acknowledgments to the public in general, for the very liberal encouragement they have experienced since they have been in this country, and respectfully solicit continuance of their favors, so long as they shall be thought to merit them. In addition to their spring importation they have lately received a quantity of

Crowley Steel and Shot, and for the season their assortment is good. They expect this Fall a very general assortment of HARDWARE at both houses.

Those to whom they are indebted will be pleased to present their accounts for settlement, and those who are indebted to them will please make payment to them at either house, with all convenient speed, as they are anxious to have their accounts closed as soon as possible. Those whose debts have been long standing will not, we hope, expect any further indulgence, otherwise they shall be obliged to have recourse to such measures as they would wish to avoid.

N. B. Prizes subject to a deduction of five teen per cent.

This Lottery has been authorized by the Governor of Virginia, for the Endable purpose of erecting a seminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this State. With this view it is contemplated to raise 20,000 dollars, and 2,500 dollars in addition, for defraying the expenses attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the first respectability have been selected as trustees, and they have pledged themselves to use their utmost exertions to carry it into effect. The scheme has the advantage of giving to each adventurer a chance for some very large prizes, whilst the proportion of prizes to blanks, is so great as to invite the friends of the intended institution to partake in the lottery, with very little risk of their becoming losers. The trustees of this State is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are sold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to fortunate adventurers. It is to be believed that the above considerations will induce a rapid sale of the tickets, and the drawing will commence as soon as a sufficient number shall be sold to authorize it—which it is believed will be on the second Monday in December next.

Richmond, Jan. 31, 1864.
* Tickets to be had of Robert Pollard, Dr. J. Breckenborough, Senr.
Wm. Price, (Reg.) Samuel Pleasant, Jun. and Wm. Pritchard.
